Cybersecurity is consistently named as one of the most important issues facing local government IT leaders. From preparing for potential ransomware attacks and understanding the value of cyber insurance to protecting managed services and developing a prepared IT workforce, city and county IT leaders face a myriad of cybersecurity challenges every day – and they are standing up to the challenge to provide a secure tech infrastructure for government employees and communities.

Discover how frontline tech leaders across the country are responding to cybersecurity risks and working to secure their IT operations. You'll hear from chief information security officers, IT directors, and networking and security experts from both the public and private sectors about best practices and lessons learned that you can apply to your agency or organization's cybersecurity strategy
