Dominic Holland Award winning comedian and awards host who has appeared on numerous game shows including HIGNFY.

Dominic is a multi-award winning stand-up comedian and author of eight books and has countless television and radio credits, including multiple appearances on 'Have I Got News for You' and 'The Royal Variety Performance', as well as 'The News Quiz', Dominic has written and performed four BBC Radio 4 series including 'The Small World of Dominic Holland' which won a Comic Heritage Award.

A Perrier Best Newcomer and Award Nominee, Dominic has performed seven solo shows at the Edinburgh Festival, and he continues to tour the UK and beyond with his unique take on life. Described by The Sunday Times as 'the UK's master of observational comedy' and by The Daily Telegraph as 'a top notch stand-up who everyone should see.'

Despite Dominic's best efforts and his considerable achievements in show business, the cruel reality is that he has been severely out-starred by his eldest son, Tom. Tom Holland is better known as Peter Parker and even better known as Marvel's Spider-Man. Dominic accounts for his son's meteoric and 'overnight' success as a fluke in his hilarious book, Eclipsed.

Dominic has written for the late Bob Monkhouse, Harry Enfield, Lenny Henry, and Clive Anderson. He has also contributed to The Guardian, The Daily Mail, Mail on Sunday, The Independent, The Sun, the Daily Mirror and a raft of trade journals.

In Dominic's podcast 'Takes on Life', he speaks to a guest from comedy, business, sport, or academia, and has an interesting conversation about their takes on the vagaries of life.
